More than one million persons have been rendered homeless in China by the worst flood in fifty years.

Mrs. Annie E. Howe, only sister of President Wilson, died of peritonitis at New London, Conn. The body was taken to Columbus, S. C., for burial Monday.

In 1892 Maine went 14,500 Republican in September and in November Grover Cleveland swept the country for President. Look out for history to repeat itself.

Maj. Gen. Albert L. Mills, Chief of the Bureau of Militia Affairs and builder of the new West Point, died at Washington after fifteen hours' illness of pneumonia.

Great Britain's reply to the American protest against seizure and seizure of neutral mails is reported on its way and is understood again to defend censorship.

Henry Ford, the great automobile manufacturer, has followed his friend and preceptor, Thomas Edison, and announced for Wilson for president because his neutrality policy has kept us out of the European war and because he has not been away from his determination not to measure swords with poor deluded Mexico. A great many men who never voted anything but the Republican ticket will vote for Wilson and Marshall in November.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 15.—The railroad chiefs of the country were not opposed to the eight-hour day, contrary to the opinion that has prevailed throughout the country," said President F. D. Underwood, of the Erie Railroad, here for the State Fair, in an interview today.

"There is a general feeling that the eight-hour day is coming, and no doubt it will come, and it ought to come. The law will cost the Erie Railroad $5,000,000 a year. I do not believe any additional legislation is needed by Congress on this subject.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission can take care of the raise in rates if any should be needed.

"Mr. Wilson is not playing politics. He was doing what he honestly believed was for the good of the country.

WALL STREET'S VIEW OF MAINE.
Wall Street marked up the price of stocks yesterday in the belief that the returns from Maine foreshadowed the election of Mr. Hughes.

Wall Street's political judgment is never very sound, but Wall Street makes no mistakes in its interpretation of the meaning of Mr. Hughes' election. A Hughes victory would be a victory for reaction, a victory for the trusts, a victory for high tariffs, a victory for all the great financial interests that have lost their control over the United States Government since Woodrow Wilson became President. Even the possibility of such a triumph deserves the enthusiastic recognition that it received in the Capitol of Money.

As the campaign progresses it becomes more and more apparent that the Hughes candidacy is the candidacy of organized property and organized wealth. Mr. Hughes' speeches are a continuous appeal to dollars—to dollars invested in railroads, to dollars invested in Mexico, to dollars invested in the former beneficiaries of monopoly tariffs, to dollars invested in munition plants, to dollars invested in great corporations, to dollars that are insatiably greedy for more and more dividends at whatever cost to the general welfare.

When Mr. Hughes speaks he speaks in terms of property and money and material things. It is their support to which he appeals. It is their favor which he solicits.—New York World.

WILSON'S TAX PLAN PRAISED BY WHITE.

New York, Sept. 15.—William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette and Progressive party leader, life long Republican, who recently declared in favor of the Adamson eight-hour law, proposed by President Wilson and enacted by Congress, now heartily indorses the Democratic revenue measure.

Editorially he refers to it as a "great progressive measure" and "a revolutionary step forward." He adds: "There will be much buncombe from Republicans about this measure. The standpatter voted against it. But no Republican administration will ever dare to change the principle of the increased income tax, the inheritance tax and the tax on consumers of luxuries and on the makers of munitions of war.

WHAT MORE DO YOU WANT?

The Republicans in this country have been declaring for ten years for a new currency bill which would contract and expand to meet the demands of the country and to prevent panics. The Republican party never passed such a law, but the Democratic party has.

The Republican party has always been in favor of a great navy. It was practically in power for fifty years and has never given the country a great navy. The Democratic party has.

The Republican party has time and again declared for a Tariff Commission to deal with the question of custom duties, but the Republican party failed to pass a law for such a Commission. The Democratic party passed it.

The Republican party has for years advocated Federal Aid for public highways, but never passed such a law. The Democratic party did.

Time and again, when the Republicans had control of Congress, they have introduced several measures providing for a Rural Credit System to cheapen borrowed money to farmers but they never passed such a measure. The Democratic party did.

The Republican party left a deficit in the Post Office Department while the Democratic party, after establishing thousands of rural routes, has a surplus of $1,300,000.

The Republicans and the Progressives have been loud in their demand for Preparedness and the Democratic party has provided for such Preparedness so that the Republicans cannot raise a question.

The Republicans said they wanted peace and declared that President Wilson was about to plunge us in war with Germany and with Mexico. He made Germany swallow its ultimatum and stop its submarine warfare, and his wise policy on the border is bringing peace and quiet in Mexico. President Wilson has kept this nation out of war and given us peace.

The Republican party has time and again declared that whenever the Democratic party was given power in this country it meant hard times and that there could be no prosperity under its rule. Under Wilson's administration there are no hard times, but the most unparalleled prosperity, affecting all classes of industry. What greater prosperity could the farmer and the manufacturer have than now?

The Republican party has always contended that when the tariff was lowered wages would be lowered and farmers would get lower prices. The tariff has been reduced and wages are higher than ever before known and farm products are higher than ever before known.

In the face of these indisputable facts, why should not the Republicans vote an endorsement of President Wilson? What more do they want?—Elizabethtown News.

100 PER CENT. DODGING.

While Mr. Hughes was speaking at Nashville he referred to the attitude of President Wilson toward Huerta.

"You would have recognized that assassin, wouldn't you?" shouted a man in the audience. "Now I didn't say that," replied Mr. Hughes.

The same answer can be made to any inference that anybody tries to draw from Mr. Hughes' speeches what he would do or what he would not do. At Nashville he attacked the President for preventing a railroad strike by the only means available. But Mr. Hughes did not say what he would have done had he been President and confronted with the situation that the President faced. He assailed the "surrender" of Congress, but he did not say that if elected President he would recommend the immediate repeal of this Eight-Hour law. Yet if the law is wrong, that is what he ought to do. It is what he would do and what he would say if he had courage and convictions.

Mr. Hughes has been going about the country talking for weeks about the "timidity and vacillation" of Mr. Wilson, but no other candidate for President was ever so timid and vacillating as Mr. Hughes. There is not a voter who does not know where Mr. Wilson stands on every issue of the campaign. There is not a voter who knows where Mr. Hughes stands on any issue.

There is no better measure of the relative courage of the two candidates than their attitude toward the hyphen issue. Mr. Wilson in his speech of acceptance said frankly and unequivocally:

I neither seek the favor nor fear of that small alien element among us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States.

Everybody knows what that means, but who can make anything out of Mr. Hughes' "Dominant Americanism" generalities? Mr. Roosevelt spoke boldly and fearlessly on the hyphen issue at Lewiston, and Mr. Hughes sent him a telegram of congratulation on his speech as a whole, but Mr. Hughes has never ventured to say what the President and Mr. Roosevelt have said, and all efforts to smoke him out have failed.

No man has a moral right to aspire for office of President in times like these who is afraid to say frankly and openly where he stands on every issue of the campaign. To dodge or to evade is to seek to gain the Presidency by false pretenses. A candidate who fears to have policies of his own confesses that he does not believe the American people would elect him if they knew his true political opinions.

We should never have expected such a contribution from Charles E. Hughes to the National stock of intellectual dishonesty, but since Mr. Hughes became "100 per cent. a candidate" he has done much that we should never have expected. The more he campaigns for the Presidency the less we can recognize the Hughes who was once Governor of New York. But as Lincoln once remarked about Presidential ambition: "You don't know what that gnawing is till you've had it."
